

trump

Shuffle the deck and deal out the cards equally amongst the players. Each player holds his cards so that the other players cannot see them.

The first player looks at his first card, chooses a category and calls out the value of that category on the card. The other players check the value of the same category on their first card and the highest value wins the hand. The top card of the player who lost this round is placed at the bottom of the winner's hand along with the winning card. If the values are the same, draw out the next card in the hand and call the same category. The game continues until one player has won all the cards.
